DSMRA Rider's Code:

Obey the laws and regulations on recreational vehicles. Observe restrictions on use of public land and don't go around locked gates.

Respect the environment. Stick to formed tracks and avoid sensitive areas such as wetlands and vegetated dunes. Treat native wildlife with respect.

Don't ride when conditions are such that it will severely damage tracks. As a general guide, if you are leaving a 10cm deep rut over a distance of 50m or more, you shouldn't be in there.

Be considerate of other users of the bush. Keep to the left-hand side of any track, and give way to horse riders. Ride sensibly past general recreational areas such as camping and picnic spots.

Always ride a well-muffled and registered bike.

Always carry a current driver's license, and don't ride in public areas with anyone who is unregistered or unlicensed.

Obtain permission from the relevant landholder before riding or camping on private land. Leave livestock alone and gates as you found them.

Exercise some throttle control when overtaking other vehicles. Don't shower them with rocks!

Don't wear a single line rut through drainage structures such as erosion control banks.

Keep the environment clean. Take out what you take in.
